Instructions: Follow the steps below to set up create and practice your elevator pitch. An elevator pitch is your answer to the interview question Tell me about yourself. Make sure you speak as if you are in an interview. Tailor your pitch to make it relevant to an interview for a software developer position.

1. Write your elevator pitch below. Your pitch should:
 - a. be clear and concise
 - b. be less than 30 seconds
 - c. be a summary of who you are
 - d. contain something personal (i.e. a hobby, passion, etc.)

My Elevator Pitch:

Hi, I'm Jake Udel. I'm a software engineer and consultant with over twenty-five years' experience. I've got a passion for supporting scientific research and to that end, I bring skills such as Artificial Intelligence, Remote Sensing, Object Oriented Programming, and Database implementation and management. When I'm not coding, I'm an active first responder, firefighter, search leader, and search dog handler for my district, county, and state. I'm also an electronic musician and composer.

2. Practice your elevator pitch out loud. Record your elevator pitch and upload it to the internet. You can use whichever tool you'd like to upload (Facebook, YouTube, DropBox, etc.), just make sure you can give someone a link to view the file. Paste the link to your uploaded recording below.
